Eight patrolmen in two squad cars and six detectives were assigned today to the hunt for the lone burglar whose early morning raids in the homes of the elite have alarmed all Beacon Hill. No clue to the identity of the bold marauder was forthcoming today. Police failed to find fingerprints and reached the conclusion he wears gloves. His victims failed to identify any of the gallery photos as his. His agency with the authorities guarded the burglar for more than a week was lifted by them only in dry certain features of published reports, chiefly that which pictured the raider as stealing a kiss from the lips of Miss Mary, daughter of Joseph de Camp, Mrs. Edith P. de Camp, of West End street.

MRS. de CAMP'S OWN STORY

"My mother, who is 91 years old, has her room on the same floor as mine, the third of a six-story in the morning murder came to my room and awakened me and said there was a man in the house. BOSTON'S MOST BEAUTIFUL ARTIST DIVORCES SZATHMARY

BARES BATTLE WHEN HE TOOK RIVAL HOME

Former Juliette Cutler Tells of Husband's Drinking and of Blows He Struck Her

Juliette Cutler Szathmary, Boston's most beautiful artist, won a divorce in Suffolk probate court today after relating how she used force to eject from her home a young woman her husband had taken there to spend the night.

The unpleasant incident occurred in February, 1931. Mrs. Szathmary told Judge McCool, and that she said, was less than twenty years after her marriage to Irving Szathmary.

Szathmary arrived home with an unidentified woman and insisted she be given lodging. Both were quite intoxicated, the artist testified.

"Finally he became so enraged by seeing punches at me and the other woman and I finally pushed her out the door," she said. Mrs. Szathmary said she left her husband last July because he hit her on the chin and shook her when she remonstrated with him about his continued drinking.

The artist's beauty is of a built of the type which has made her black hair full red lips and large dark eyes of mystic blue. She has been called the "double" for the girl of Zingales's Spanish portrait bought by former Gov. Fuller in 1925. While she did not consider herself a great actress, she was always more ambitious to be an artist herself.

She studied at the Boston Art School from which she graduated. She is employed as an artist in a hospital at establishment.

CARRIES $56000 ON PLANE RIDE

A messenger with a little black bag boarded the 11:15 American Airways plane for New York at the Boston Airport today.

He was just another passenger to the others who boarded the plane, nervously fingering their tickets and billfolds, as travelers will do. But it might have relieved their worry over their own few dollars to know that the little black bag which this passenger carried contained $56,000 in negotiable securities—just as good as that much cash.

He arrived at the airport uneventfully in an auto in which rode two armed guards, who kept in the background so that no undue attention would be attracted to the man with the money.

The "big money" man was L. M. Borey, employee of a Boston brokerage house, en route to a banking firm in Wall St. to put the finishing touches on an important deal. Another bodyguard was to meet him at the New York airport.

LIBBY EVER GUARDED BY HER FAMILY

A pathetic figure was Libby Holman Reynolds, widow of Zachary Smith Reynolds, as she left a hotel of Havre de Grace, Md., for a short ride about the country a few hours after her name had been cleared in Winston-Salem, N. C. Assisting her into her auto were her brother and mother, while her father is shown at the left. Libby appeared to be very nervous and weighs about 20 pounds more than when she was the famous Broadway torch singer. She expects a visit from the stork in February. (Hill News Photo.)

KAREN MORLEY TO MARRY
By LOVELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Covered, 1932 by Universal Service, Inc. Hollywood, Nov. 18.—The ring is waiting and so is the bride. As for the bridegroom he admits he is counting the days until Karen Morley becomes Mrs. Charles Vidor.

Romantic and interesting, art it that the beautiful and popular actress-goldwyn-stayer actress is shortly to become the bride of Charles Vidor, a director on the same lot.

The bridegroom admitting the marriage would take place in a very short time, but denied they were married yet. They certainly are friends but night at the Prince Cafe and there were reports that it was their wedding anniversary.

Miss Morley has come to the front in an amazingly short time. Her work in "Mati Hart," "Washington Masquerade" and other MGM pictures has given her a worldwide reputation. She has also become known as one of the most intelligent of the new crop of actresses.

Mrs. Vidor, no relation to King Vidor also a director, directed "Pa Manchu" and is now in line for other pictures. He is a young man of more than average intelligence, and friends believe his career is just starting.

VANDENBERG IN DEMAND FOR COPY REPEAL

Michigan Senator Yields to People's Call for Early Beer Legislation

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, formally announced today that he favors immediate submission of a prohibition repeal amendment and liberalization of the Volstead law.

The amendment came as anti-prohibitionists in the House were seeking to have the Ways and Means Committee draft a beer bill in time for presentation when Congress convenes.

Chairman Cullen agreed to refer to committee a measure suggesting that the House should consider a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment because of the failure of the prohibition law to suppress the sale of liquor.

Vandenberg said he was in favor of immediate submission of the Eighteenth Amendment because of the failure of the prohibition law to suppress the sale of liquor.

Vandenberg said at the last session against the proposals for repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

"For two reasons," he said, "it should be considered at once. First, citizens who have spoken so convincingly are entitled to a right of opportunity to complete their concept of ordered temperance."

Second, pending this conclusive action there is an interlude of chaos which injects no incentive into all law enforcement, precipitates new disputes over federal and state incorporation, shatters morale and encourages lawless and untidy liquor traffic."

Pou Sees an Early Vote on Beer Bill

Revere Widow Foils Bandit Who Faces Her With Gun

The presence of mind of Mrs. Mary Revere, 66, a widow of 101 years, at Revere, a swimming pool front door failed an attempt to rob her in her home early today.

While the holdup man stood at the threshold with a gun pressed against her, Mrs. Revere screamed, swung the door to and telephoned police.

The bandit ran down the steps, jumped into a small black coupe and drove away in the direction of Chelsea.

Mrs. Revere was alone in the house when the holdup man first made his appearance. To inquire for her two sons, Samuel and George, who conduct a nearby garage.

She told the man that her sons had not returned home, and he then asked about a man who he said was James Reynolds. Mrs. Revere was unable to give him any information about such a person and the stranger drove away.

Ten minutes later he returned, rang the doorbell again, and as the woman opened it, thrust a nickel-plated revolver at her and commanded her to put up her hands.

She was too quick for him and got the door shut before he could put his foot in it.

Mrs. Revere described the holdup man as about five feet seven inches tall, 20 to 25 years old, with black, wavy hair.

JAIL MAYNARD GIRL PILFERER

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Opportunity for Mildred Peterson, 24, of Maynard, Mass., pretty and blonde, to indulge her bent for pilfering from employers for whom she worked as maid were lacking in the "home" where she worked today.

She was on Welfare Island, serving a sentence in the penitentiary of not more than three years. Before she was sentenced by Judge Donnellan, Miss Peterson pleaded guilty to stealing $90 cash and a $300 gold mesh bag from Mrs. Ethel Bieber.

After Mrs. Bieber hired Miss Peterson the loot and the new maid vanished within 10 minutes. Miss Peterson, known to many who lost valuables as a "perfect maid" before the loot was discovered, told probation officers a married man of Beacon, N. Y., had induced her to steal. A checkup failed to substantiate the story fully.

School Bus Stolen So Citizens Have to Hitch-Hike

Norriston, Nov. 18—An auto thief with a sense of humor and a liking for bright colors has stolen the huge orange school bus of this community.

The bus is so big that it could carry all the pupils at one time and it was so colorful it could be seen a mile away. But somewhere a bold bad thief is driving it, or has parked it, maybe disguised as a cream-colored sport car.

The bus was stolen last night in Shrewsbury while leading citizens of this town were taking a look at a dance marathon on their way back from an American Legion in statist at Uxbridge.

They were left stranded and had to hitch-hike home while the thief was apparently providing somewhere in the bulky bus with its foot-high words, "School Bus," painted on the back.

Sammy and His Debt Dodgers

Illustration by F. Opper, Boston Evening American

A GRIPPING EPIC OF TENSE AND THRILLING ADVENTURE!

"Hist." This alarming language was uttered by one of a group of sinister individuals who were holding a conference in their den. That sort of people are always supposed to inhabit "dens." It sounds mysterious and desperate. They were plotting to unload their war debts on Taxi, Sam's little pal. Those conspirators have absolutely no pity. Why, whenever they put one over on Sam they give a loud, heartless laugh, like this: "Ha, ha." You can see from that how ruthless they are. Let us hope Sam and Taxi will be on their guard. Every cloud has a silver lining sewed on the inside. Maybe 'Erlie will help them to head off these plotters. Don't miss the next chapter of this gripping pulse-stopping scenario.

MRS. SLATER TO STAY IN ASYLUM TOBIN TOO BUSY FOR POLITICS

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, widow of Henry N. Slater, New England textile manufacturer, must remain in Craig House, a sanatorium at Beacon, to which she was committed on June 19, 1930, under a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag.

Mrs. Slater's brother, Paul Hunt, of Boston, had petitioned the court last spring to have Mrs. Slater released from the sanatorium and declared sane. Hunt contended her commitment was illegal because she was not present at an inquiry into her sanity.

Justice Shientag, in denying Hunt's petition, realized that two psychiatrists had examined Mrs. Slater early this fall at his request and had reported she was suffering from a mental ailment.

In his petition Hunt had declared his sister was removed forcibly from her fifth ave. home at the instance of her son, H. Nelson Slater, and her daughter, Mrs. Esther S. Kerrigan and Mrs. Ray S. Murphy.

Buried at Arlington

Washington Nov. 18 (AP)—Rear Adm. Edward E. Hayden, retired, 74, who died yesterday in Baltimore, will be buried at Arlington tomorrow, with full military honors.

When a man is busy preparing to marry, even the magnificence fades into the background.

This was the attitude of School Committee member Maurice J. Tobin today as he hurried here and there in preparation for his wedding tomorrow.

"Gosh, I've got enough things to think of today without thinking of politics," said Tobin with regard to Mayor Curley's halting of Tobin last night as a possible successor to the mayor in City Hall.

Speaking at a bachelor dinner tendered in Tobin's honor of his coming marriage to Miss Helen Noonan of Brighton and in the presence of several considered potential candidates, the mayor declared that he, John F. Fitzgerald, Martin Lonsdale and other party leaders, were getting old and that it was time for young blood in politics.

Tobin is one of the youngest Democrats to hold a major political office. He came into the public eye four years ago when he waged a fierce campaign for Congress against the veteran George H. Hinkham. He received a tremendous vote in his recent election to the school committee.

THE BOND

HUSKIES

Nowadays, any overcoat worthy of its name must be able to stand a tough beating for at least a couple of years. It's a sad note that so many can't take it! In the process of scaling down the price, they've also been stripped of all stamina. There's no room for any of these "one-day-wonders" among The Bond Huskies! Before a fabric wins a place in this group, it must pass the toughest of all tests—the rubbing test. A special machine rubs the fabric hard. If it shows signs of wear before the 6500th rub, out it goes. And that's more wear than you'll give your overcoat in at least 2 years. In the line-up of Bond Huskies, you'll see every style from Bouclé to Polo—and you'll pay no plus for their premium performance. Come on and treat yourself to a real overcoat!

STRUCK WITH RIDING CROP, SAYS WIFE

A blow in the face with a riding crop was the answer proffered by Mrs. Leah M. Crowe of Haverhill, Mass., when she complained to her husband about going out with another woman, according to her testimony in Middlesex probate court today.

Mrs. Crowe was granted a divorce from David R. Crowe of Medford, whom she charged with cruel treatment.

She told Judge Campbell that the first time she mentioned the other woman her husband took her own riding crop and struck her, and after that whenever she spoke of the other, he slapped her.

Testifying that he arrived home late one night to find his wife kissing another man in the garden of their home, Lawrence P. Brooks of Maude, obtained a divorce from Ruth S. Brooks of North Reading.

Mrs. Brooks, mother of four children, did not contest the suit.

"I saw her in the garden with her arms around the other man, kissing him," said Brooks. "I spoke to her and she came over and slapped me. The man started for me. That ended our married life."

Mrs. Barbara M. Powell, Maiden church school, was granted an uncontested divorce after testifying that her husband, William, neglected her in spite of the fact that she had kept him out of jail in a financial scrape.

She said she sold a house for $700 to make restitution for him. Later he returned to his former occupation as master of a steamer, neglecting her and two children, whose custody she was granted today.

HELD IN DEATHS, SPURNS FOOD

Dover-Foxcroft, Me., Nov. 18 (AP).—Having survived a diet of ground glass, which he adopted, jail authorities said, in an attempt at suicide, Roland Miller, 22, Rockwood, guide, the accused murderer of three, today was reported to be on a hunger strike.

Sheriff Thomas L. Foulkes notified Miller's attorneys today, was the seventh day he had refused food and the fifth he had been without water. A physician recommended Miller be placed under observation.

Last week, after Miller had complained of illness, an examination revealed he had eaten glass ground from a jelly tumbler. Several pieces, one-half inch long, had lodged in his stomach. Since then Miller has admitted eating bits of broken razor blades.

Miller is charged with shooting his mother-in-law and father-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gagnon, and their grandson, Carol. The guide was overpowered by his three brothers-in-law before he could continue his slaughter.

Blarney Stone Stays Intact, Says Owner

Cork, Irish Free State, Nov. 18 (AP).—Sir George Colthurst, owner of Blarney Castle, emphatically denied today a report from Cleveland, O., that part of the famous "Blarney stone" had been removed to that city.

Furthermore, he said, the stone is not going over to the United States, nor is the castle to be sold.

Diplomatic Career for Fair Senorita

Madrid, Nov. 18 (AP).—Senorita Margarita Salaverria, daughter of a well known naturalist, has presented an application to the ministry of state for a place in the reorganized diplomatic corps. She is the first Spanish woman to attempt a diplomatic career.

Two hundred and seventy-two male applicants also are candidates for position.

Betrothal of Dawes' Niece Announced

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—The engagement of Miss Margaret Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, to Beverly Jefferson of Evanston, Ill., was announced by her parents today. Miss Dawes' father is president of a Century of Progress, the coming world's fair, and she is a niece of former Vice-President Charles O. Dawes, recent ambassador to Great Britain.

The steam trawler Ripple, owned by the Bay State Fishing Co., was today reported heading for Boston with leaky boiler tubes and would probably require assistance to make port. The trawler, commanded by Capt. William Connors, was fishing on La Have bank when the trouble developed, according to a wireless message. The coast guard cutter Anticam went to the aid of the crippled craft.

Mother Leads Police to Dead Son's Body

Glastonbury, Ct., Nov. 18 (INS).—Twelve hours after his mother had allegedly confessed to the murder, the body of Alexander Ringesky, seven weeks old, was found by state police today.

The 43-year-old mother, Anna Ringesky, wedded through swamps on her husband's little farm, led 10 state troopers to the spot where she had concealed the poisoned body. Monday beneath a few leaves.

Hitler May Head Coalition Cabinet

Berlin, Nov. 18 (INS).—Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, today accepted the invitation of President Von Hindenburg to confer with him in connection with formation of a new German cabinet.

The President's invitation was sent to Hitler following resignation of the cabinet headed by Chancellor Franz von Papen. It was said in some political circles Von Hindenburg might offer the fiery Hitler leadership of a coalition government.

BABY'S THREE HOURS OF FUN AGONY FOR MOTHER

Little Ernestine Griffin of Roxbury Entertained by Police While Mother Searches

For three hours today little Ernestine Griffin, two of 2½ years old, Roxbury, had a great time in Dudley at police station, but her mother, Mrs. Mary Griffin, the three hours were hours of agony.

The girl with a large doll clasped in her arms was found wandering in the middle of the street in Dudley, near Dudley station, of Roxbury, where she was seen by a police officer. She was taken to the station and her mother, Mrs. Mary Griffin, who was seen by a police officer, immediately she attached herself to the officer. She was seen by a police officer, immediately she attached herself to the officer. She was seen by a police officer, immediately she attached herself to the officer.

There was nothing else to do but put the girl in a room and wait for her mother. The girl was taken to the station and her mother, Mrs. Mary Griffin, who was seen by a police officer, immediately she attached herself to the officer. She was seen by a police officer, immediately she attached herself to the officer.

With a big all-day search, Mrs. Griffin was having a wonderful time, playing with the girl, when she almost frantically rushed into the station to report the girl.

Mrs. Griffin had searched the streets, fearing with every moment that her little daughter had been kidnapped, or killed by an automobile, and finally she went to the station.

For three hours today little Ernestine Griffin, 2½-year-old Roxbury miss, had the grandest time, playing with Officer Daniel Tarpey, No. 3, Roxbury. And for three hours, the girl's mother suffered searching the streets, fearing the child had been kidnapped or killed by an automobile. Finally she went to the police station where a scene, like the one pictured here, greeted her. Ernestine had lost herself and was unable to tell police where she lived.

In his own brand, there always being room for one more on the Tarpey bench—it's a youngster.

PROBE BARES GAS 'WRITEUP'

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission received testimony today there had been a "writeup" of $3,130,568 in the fixed capital of the Worcester, Mass., Gas Light Company after it was acquired by the New England Gas & Electric Association in 1927.

Ossian Cole Van Zant, an examiner, testified the fixed capital was "coerced on the books of the Worcester company at $7,864,240, but that the consolidated balance sheet of the association for the end of 1927 reported it at $3,600,000.

LEVINE'S FISTS SET TO FLY

New York, Nov. 18 (INS)—Charles A. Levine, the world's first trans-Atlantic air passenger, doubled his fist and shouted a "That's a lie!" cried Levine. "The government made a lot of claims totaling about $48,000, but it was all settled for about $100,000."

"It's true, though," Stude persisted, "that you were trying to cheat the government, isn't it?"

Referee James Marks spoke first, reminding Stude against such questions, and then Levine blazed out his challenge.

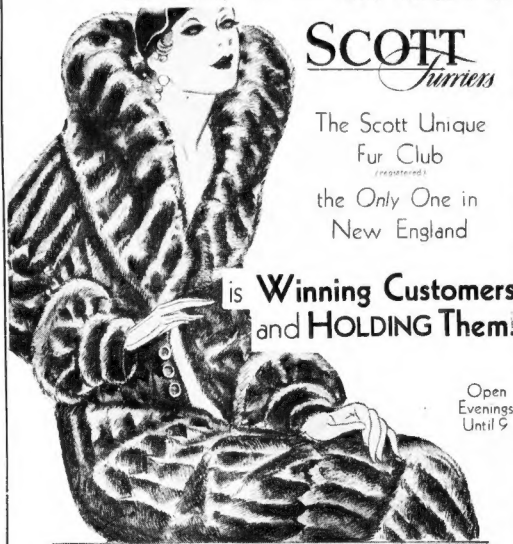

Just before then Levine estimated that his fortune at the peak was only $2,000,000. He said he lost $800,000 to $900,000 on aviation, was an air passenger to show that the world's first passenger had been much too modest in discussing his finances.

BIG PARADE TO YALE-HARVARD GAME IS ON

The big parade to New Haven for the Harvard-Yale game starts today with thousands of people starting to drive down the road. Cars added to the regular trains to take care of the rush.

All through the day the parade of those who expect to spend the night in or near New Haven will go over the road, and hotels on the way are looking forward to a boom business.

Those who are interested particularly in the game and not in the attendant festivities will start early tomorrow. Police in the towns along the way have been warned to hold themselves in readiness for extra traffic duty.

SIX SPECIAL TRAINS

Four special trains will leave the South Station over the New Haven between 8 and 9 A.M. and return immediately after the game. The Boston & Albany will run a special train at 7:45. In addition a train of 11 cars chartered by the Harvard Club of Boston will get under way at 7:30.

Recommended routes for those motoring to the game were announced today by the touring department of the A. A. A. The first takes the most direct Common wealth route following Route 28 to a point half a mile beyond Cherry River. Then follow Route 33 to the Worcester Turnpike at Framingham Center. Thence north on the turnpike from Framingham turn right on to the Worcester by pass and follow 14 miles to Route 12.

ONE WAY TURN UP

After a mile on Route 12 bear left on Route 15 and follow through the Bedford Springs Hotel, Hartland and Middleboro to New Haven.

An alternate route is from Boston on Route 1 to Dedham and thence on the new highway to Providence. To avoid Providence turn left in Orna at running in the valley at the crossing of the river below Plumfield at Framingham and follow the turnpike to Middleboro thence on Route 15 to New Haven. Avoid Route 6 from Middleboro which is under construction.

Special one way turn ups along the road by most towns on route.

A route which will be used by many old timers is the road via Weymouth, Hingham, Milford, Cambridge, Stateville and Willimantic.

THIS IS LIFE

Save the Zoo, But Dress the Part for Pig-Sticking or Biking
By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IT LOOKS AS IF we are in for a return to the simple life. I imagine everybody feels contented that the deer, and the buffalo in the Franklin Park Zoo are not to be slaughtered and used for food in order to save the expenses of their keep. Not that anyone regards the men down at Deer Island (or is it Long Island?) a meal of venison, but with wild life as rare as it is, feeding it to city pensioners seems a waste.

A zoo is an expensive proposition and maybe we cannot afford one in these days, but the fact that when the news broke the Park was quoted all day by the young people who wanted to see their favorite animals once more seems to show that in keeping up morale, a public pleasure and instruction, a public duty of animals may be worth all the money it costs.

Mustn't Be Game for Hunters

But we suspect there'll be trouble ahead if the surplus of buffalo and yak and what have you are sold to come but who desire to run private zoos of their own. It is true that the chasers will have to be investigated, to see if they have the facilities of a buffalo range or a deer park, before they are allowed. Nevertheless, no fence were ever one hundred percent proof, and the traveling public may see some strange sights in the future.

Up in New Brunswick they say it is no longer the case that a moose or deer in the highroad. Here in Massachusetts, I understand, they are putting up signs along the road where deer generally cross. Whether that is to save the deer, or to keep the animal from wrecking the car I do not know. Anyway, if our automobilists, sober or drunk, find themselves running into buffalo on the main highway, or strange deer, or yak—whatever a yak is—they may wonder how much prohibition is really needed. If you can see buffalo when cold sober, what need of more?

I hope the zoos can afford to keep the animal, while the children can see them. If not, there must be no chance of a hunter buying them with the idea of turning them into a day's hunting. The tragic-comic tale of the middle western hunter with his tame old lions—which the sheriff eventually killed with machine guns—was one of the most revolting stories of our day and one that must have made every real sportsman pretty sick.

If the gun toters want sport, let them go down to Rockport on Cape Ann where Chief Sullivan announces that the woods are full of wild pigs which are accustomed to chase anyone they find loose on Dogtown Common. There is an opportunity for sport. Strays from some of the pizzozes that used to perfume the landscape, they are now numerous and fierce. Hunters welcome!

Don't Forget the Brandy

Of course it ought to be done in proper time. Now, and hunters are rather too inclined to do hunting in old clothes. They really are not 'vogue, as Ragland of Red Gap would say. That may be all right for squirrels and rabbits and an occasional fox, but not for wild pigs. Rockport should know better.

The proper costume for pig-sticking, and that of the only way to hunt the beasts is in whipcord riding breeches, high boots, a silk shirt open at the throat, a sunhelmet with puggles and the appropriate fashion of long Indian earrings and a flask of brandy. It goes without saying that there should be a horse, too. Also some Indian hunters who raise the wild pigs from his haunts in the jungle—I mean Dogtown—with strange Hindu noises.

The technique is somewhat different from that of hunting tigers on elephants but the costume is much the same. I look to see many a brave turnout this fall. The cavalcade will, probably meet in Dock Square and will ride out together following the trail of the shikars or hunters, perhaps with a bugle for directions. On through the brambles and thickets and swamps and up into the rocky upland of Dogtown. On the right they will pass a sculptured rock with the inscription, "What Goes Up Must Come Down." "Honesty Is the Best Policy," on the left another rock with another inscription, "Trust in God but Suckers to Baboon's Service."

There will be pork in Rockport this winter. How much better than the slaying of captive-bred, tame, dove-tamed deer and buffalo, whether by rifle or automobile. And how much better eating! I never ate a Buffalo but I should suppose it would be open season.

Open Season for Girls, Too

But loose buffalo on the road and wild pigs on the common are not the only menaces in these exciting days. Wellesley girls on bicycles are causing anxiety out that way. The good inhabitants of the town are getting crooked necks, they say, and strained backs trying to look two ways at once. Apparently all the girls in the college are riding the pesky machines. They ride abreast all over the road, and tandem. They seem not to worry about tail lights or headlights or bells. A dark shape looms suddenly out of the dusk ahead of you or behind. There is a horrified squeal or a ripple of girlish laughter, a smart bump, and you find yourself on your left ear as the young Phi Beta Kappa peddles merrily away down the hill for a chocolate pecan marshmallow sundae.

So the undergraduate body has appointed a traffic squad of 20 girls whose business it is to keep the youthful cyclists from doing too much damage. By the way, I hope the girls are dressing the part. Now that all the women's dresses are going 1000 again, with leg o'mutton sleeves and princess waists, they may not revive the old bicycle costume? In the old days the fair one had a choice of two.

If she were demure and modest she could wear the divided skirt, rainy day length, with gaiters. A short pinched jacket, a white stock and a deer-stalker hat completed the costume. But if she were a bold bad thing, who loved to "scorch" down hill with her feet off the pedals, she undoubtedly wore blouses and a turtle-neck sweater and did her best to look as much like a Penrhyn Stanlaws girl as possible.

And the moral of all this is—if we must go pig-sticking or bicycle-riding, let us at least be dressed right. Nothing so takes away the sting of being mistaken for a pig or being bumped by a bicycle as to know that the sticker or the bumper was sartorially correct. For such are the Kingdom of Heaven.

OLDTIMERS HOLD FILM SPOTLIGHT

"Encore" Comes to Plymouth Early Next Month Before Broadway Presentation

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

It is becoming plainer every day that the classic play of the American stage is a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past. Ethel Barrymore, the greatest actress of the American stage, is now presenting a new play, "The Sign of the Cross," at the Plymouth Theatre. The play is a historical drama, and it is a play that is a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past.

engagement may not be strictly termed an American premiere, it still remains a pre-Broadway presentation. Before Boston there will be a week in Washington to cut the rough edges.

SHUFFLING THE CARDS
American drama is made of cards, and the cards are shuffled. The play is a historical drama, and it is a play that is a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past.

While Miss Barrymore's local reputation is well known, her reputation as a national actress is also well known. She is a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past, a point of view of the past.

France, Able to Pay, Wants to Unload Her Just Burdens on U. S.

The collective effort of our war-time associates to escape from their liabilities to the United States Treasury is proceeding in accordance with schedule.

As soon as the American election was out of the way the debtors began to beseech us for mercy. Even France, with the largest per capita holdings of gold in the world, asks for further forbearance, despite the fact that the present contract has wiped out all indebtedness except that contracted after the Armistice, according to former Secretary Mellon.

With the setting of a foreboding deficit this fiscal year of a billion dollars in the American budget, the European Governments picked an unpropitious occasion for suggesting transferring additional burdens to the backs of American taxpayers.

As one way has suggested, this depression occurred at an inconvincible time.

The Louisiana maneuver was put over in face of the plain warning by the American Congress last December that no further debt reduction would be considered.

The propagandists for the debtor countries emphasize their unsubstantiated assertion that remission would restore America's export trade—an assertion which is unproved and unprovable.

This statement is made in face of the well known fact that during this year, in which the moratorium was graciously given to our debtors, foreign countries have been going to extraordinary extremes TO TAKE IN AS LITTLE AMERICAN GOODS AS FEASIBLE.

The underlying facts are plain. All nations, like individuals, are facing difficult economic problems during this period of readjustment.

Great Britain, France and others have hit upon the happy thought of raising their budgetary problems by ADDING TO THE BURDEN OF OURS.

Curiously enough, their ballyhoo has impressed some Americans, who ought to know better, with the bizarre idea that debt postponement or cancellation will restore prosperity, irrespective of what we do with such really basic problems as unemployment, unbalanced production, financial and banking malpractices, and the whole array of items of mismanagement and misgovernment which have prolonged hard times.

These glib individuals would hardly consider that their own prosperity would be advanced if those who owe them money should decline to pay it.

The threat of default should not stampede the American Congress. Default would injure the credit of the borrowers for generations. It would not impair the standing of the creditor.

So far as the Allies are concerned, our Government has already treated them vastly more liberally than private debtors have fared.

The war admittedly was a ghastly waste from the strictly economic viewpoint, but why in the name of fairness should its unbalanced cost be saddled on our country, which almost alone of the belligerents was concededly not responsible for starting it?

Boston Digs Out

National Dry Goods Head Sees Prosperity

P. A. O'Connell, who is head of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, tells us that the people of Boston and its environs are steadily and surely digging their way out of the depression to the high road of prosperity again.

For one thing, they pay their bills. That keeps money moving. It is a highly important reason why New England has felt the times less severely than other sections of the country.

Mr. O'Connell says that the spirit of financial integrity is traditional to the people of New England. Longfellow, you may remember, epitomized that virtue in the village blacksmith. "He looks the whole world in the face for he owes not any man."

When Mr. O'Connell says that business conditions are improving, it is worth noting with optimism. Boston and its environs constitute the richest retail area in the United States. That means, in the world.

Bowing to the Rod

The chief trouble with us, so we are told by President Coffman, of the University of Minnesota, is that we are "a nation of economic illiterates." So few of us know political economy, which bristles with price indices, moratoriums, and flux and flow of gold.

Conductor Hadley believes that our great fault is that we are almost too deaf, and prefer jazz to Palestrina. Painters, on the contrary, think our national flaw is that we are color blind. Bishop Cannon avers we are headed for perdition because we are a nation of drinkers. On the other hand, other able minds, which include those who don't drink enough.

A leading feminist holds that we don't know and don't utilize the ability of women, and that we should have women statesmen. Perhaps he meant we need more "Ma" Fergusons.

We know nothing at all, and get no praise for any virtue we may possess. Not even for the virtue of patience that we show in listening to people who tell us what's the real matter with us.

A True American

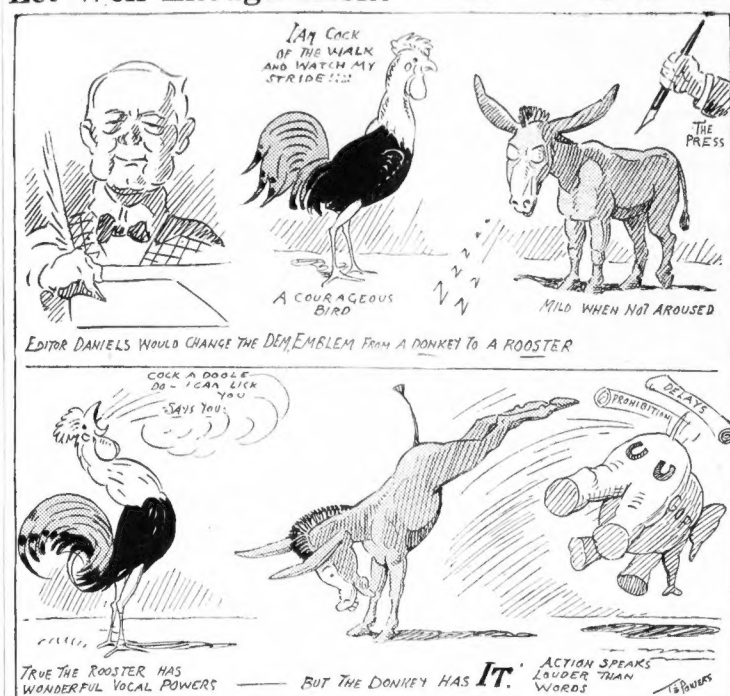

Felix Frankfurter has accepted the Eastman professorship at Oxford University. He will be gone from us a year, which will be our loss and England's gain. We can expect he will return to us with his American citizenship, his political liberalism untarnished. He is just that sort of a fine and dependable citizen.

Ashley Still on Job

Charles S. Ashley, at the age of 74, agrees to be Mayor of New Bedford again, for the 20th year. The whaler has left the town council jump no longer lights the drawing room. But so long as Charlie Ashley remains at the helm, the fame of New Bedford is secure.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Though while strolling: Charles Butterworth suggests an old cab horse in head-down remembrance. Cliff Smith, Claire Luce's husband, has the most precise middle hair-part. No one comes so nearly resembling John Barrymore in the movies as Warren Winson.

One word description of Wayne McMein—laundress. Sam H. Harris makes me think of those robber-fakes' windows of angel food cake. It's like biting into a cloud. Clara Walsh's widow, Selyaham looks like a toy out of Saks window. George By, a Kansas City, Mo., man, who made good in the city. Broadway seems a wasteful pond, filled with minnows gazing for air. Gene Buck excites the paroxysms of Jimmy Walker. When remembers when "skidoo" means scam? Earl Carroll, losing one theater, now has two.

A loud coffee shop lists: "Fried mushrooms—10 cents." And the flood of strong man medicine shows. But what came of the chestnut nut? Of am I talking the wrong street? The bravely forlorn young stores. That dragger acts as though she might have had two Old Fashioned.

Jeannie Aubert had much voice, but I'd rather hear her than Challa. The two well known "Decty"—Ayleworth and Parker. Their "where were deacons. Elmer Davis, graying, too. And Bide Dullery's, for heaven's sake, is none white. Whatever became of my career?

To me, the most exciting moment in the theater is when some obscure person tells his frailty in brief role and romps away with the show. This recently happened in a short-lived play starring engaging Dorothy Hare, the scenic, Percy Kilbride portrayed a simple rustic in a cross-dress garage. In three two-minute bits, he brought forth the terrific tarantula-rs of the evening. He always entered anything about some personal experience with the ladies, as though a mighty Don Juan. For instance, "she told me anything over me. I looked her in the eye, and told her flatly I would have nothing but the Business Man's Lunch."

The actor, to my notion—and not because he was born in a covered wagon, on the outskirts of Plains, Mo.—who can take an inconsequential bit and almost dominate a play, starring even Mrs. Fiske, is Sidney Toler. Lately, I observe he has the scene, Percy Kilbride portrayed a simple rustic in a cross-dress garage. In three two-minute bits, he brought forth the terrific tarantula-rs of the evening. He always entered anything about some personal experience with the ladies, as though a mighty Don Juan. For instance, "she told me anything over me. I looked her in the eye, and told her flatly I would have nothing but the Business Man's Lunch."

My envy of stage folks touches the irreducible minimum. A sole longing is to be master of a piano.

Contract Bridge

THANK HEAVEN, the country's safe at last!

The terrible days of bitter vacillation are over—the tortured nights of fear and remorse. And now we can sit down and draw a long, easy breath and begin to plan for the future.

And doesn't it make you swell with pride to think that, at a time like this, we American can forget our childish buggaboo and protect the "complete psychic possibility" whatever they may be, of contract bridge?

Well, if it does, somebody ought to be getting out your comment papers, setting—and seeing that the walls are padded, nice and soft.

And now, highly, here's my chance to get this thing off my chest. And if you don't like it, that's your bad luck.

For years and years, I've been watching America go bridge. Time was, it folks dropped in on an evening, they would sit around and talk. Or have a little music. Or start into a fight over politics. Or dodge a some other pleasant and stimulating performance. But those days are gone.

Now the supper dishes are stacked, out come the little green tables.

The Hoover-Roosevelt Conference

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE SIMULTANEOUS submission of the English and French notes to the Hoover-Roosevelt conference, evidently prepared after consultation, must have been expected. Frequently we have called attention in these columns to the realization that the real test of the plan for the transfer of the debts would follow immediately in the wake of the election. The purpose of these notes is to ask a continuation of the moratorium, and, in the meanwhile, to work out some plan for a further reduction of the debts; and this probably means in the end the cancellation, as far as the debtors are concerned, but no cancellation as far as we are concerned.

If the debts are forgiven the debtors, then all the tax burdens of all the debtor nations must fall upon the taxpayers of this country. To the extent that the debt is further reduced there must be an increase in the taxes of the American taxpayers.

That should be thoroughly understood primarily.

On the very day the notes were released to the press a report from some Americans favoring this concession to the debtors was given in the press. The timing was perfect. There can be no doubt that a desperate effort is to be made to shift the debts.

American Congress Has Gone on Record

The American Congress has gone on record unmistakably in a resolution unanimously adopted at the time of the moratorium, and it is just as well to state this before

"It is hereby expressly declared to be against the policy of Congress that any of the members of foreign countries to the United States should be in any manner compelled to reduce or nothing in this joint resolution shall be construed as indicating any intention on the part of the United States to assume any obligation to change in the policy thereby declared."

The political party that now has a mandate from the people beginning on March 4, desired without negotiation in its uniform against any form of "cancellation."

From the Pockets of Our Own People

The money landed in the debtors' pockets was granted, made any such money from the pockets of the American people.

We expected to pay it back to those from whom we borrowed it through the return of the loans from the debtor nations.

Time was, it folks dropped in on an evening, they would sit around and talk. Or have a little music. Or start into a fight over politics. Or dodge a some other pleasant and stimulating performance. But those days are gone.

Now the supper dishes are stacked, out come the little green tables.
